HAMPSHIRE’S LAW FIRM HAD CIA TIES

By Nathan Goldstein and Rob Watts

Hampshire College (Hampshire) has reeled from an uncertainty in its legal community, as the school has revealed a series of documents indicating that its attorney general has been connected to the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). In a statement, the school said that it has been aware of this connection since the mid-1980s and has taken steps to address the issue.

The revelation comes as the school is facing a significant financial crisis, with the recent closures of two of its academic programs and the departure of its president. Hampshire has also been hit by a series of sexual assault allegations, which have led to a loss of trust among its students and faculty.

"We are deeply concerned and committed to addressing these issues," said a school spokesperson. "We are working with our legal counsel to ensure that the school is in compliance with all relevant laws and regulations."
Hampshire Day Care: The Second Year

By Judith North

On September 1, Hampshire opened its new daycare center at the Village of Pompeii in South Portland. The center, which opened in 1976, is the result of a collaborative effort between the University of Southern Maine and the Village of Pompeii. The center provides care for children ages 6 weeks to 5 years old, and it is staffed by experienced early childhood professionals.

The center's director, Judy North, is a registered nurse and a certified daycare director. She has been working in the field of early childhood education for over 20 years. She is responsible for overseeing the day-to-day operations of the center and ensuring that all children receive quality care.

The center offers a safe and nurturing environment for children to learn and grow. It is designed to promote the development of children's social, emotional, cognitive, and physical abilities. The center's curriculum is based on age-appropriate activities that encourage children to explore and discover the world around them.

The center is open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Tuition is affordable, and financial assistance is available to families in need. For more information, please visit the center's website at hampshiredaycare.org or call 207-555-1234.

Task Force on Investment Responsibility

By Michael J. Curran

The Task Force on Investment Responsibility has been established to ensure that the University of Southern Maine's investments are consistent with the University's mission and values. The Task Force is composed of five members: the President, the Provost, the Dean of the College of Business, the Chair of the Board of Trustees, and a community member.

The Task Force has been charged with reviewing the University's investment policies and practices to ensure that they are aligned with the University's mission and values. The Task Force will also consider the impact of investments on the local community and the environment.

The Task Force will meet at least once per year and will report its findings to the Board of Trustees. The Task Force will also make recommendations to the Board of Trustees on how to improve the University's investment practices.

The Task Force on Investment Responsibility is committed to ensuring that the University's investments are consistent with the University's mission and values. The Task Force will work to create a more sustainable and responsible investment portfolio that benefits the University and the community.
