TRUSTEES TO CONSIDER:
TO DIVEST OR NOT TO DIVEST?

By Mary Stein Schanzer

On March 11th, the Finance Committee will discuss whether Hampshire College should divest from its investment portfolio of securities held in companies involved in the arms industry. This divestment is part of the ongoing discussion at Hampshire regarding the college's role in supporting or distancing itself from the arms industry. The committee will consider the financial impact of such a decision on the college and the ethical implications of maintaining or removing financial ties to companies involved in arms production. This discussion is an extension of the broader conversation on corporate social responsibility in higher education. The Trustees will then need to decide if they wish to pursue a policy of divestment or continue to invest in companies involved in the arms industry. This decision will be guided by the committee's recommendations and further informed by the committee's analysis of the financial and ethical dimensions of the issue.

Jeanne Splits The Scene

In Mark Taylor

Jeanne Ehrlich, the director of United Service Organizations's (USO)拧角s in the United States, recently held a large conference at Hampshire College. The conference focused on the role of USO services in supporting service members during their military service and transitioning back to civilian life. Ehrlich discussed the challenges faced by those in the military and the importance of supporting them. The conference was well-received, with many attendees expressing interest in collaborations with Hampshire College to support service members. Future plans for the USO services in the United States include expanding their programs and services to better meet the needs of the military community. The conference was a success, and Ehrlich is looking forward to future collaborations with Hampshire College to support service members.
Off the Shelves

Missing Books a Hassle for All

by Paul Dumas

The shelves are empty at Hampshire College. Students say they're missing their books. In fact, some students say they've already lost their books.

"The shelves are empty at Hampshire College," said one student. "I've been looking for my books for the last week and I can't find them." Another student added, "I thought my books were here, but they're not." The college's administration has confirmed that some books have been missing for a few weeks.

"We're not sure what happened," said the college's spokesperson. "We've looked everywhere, but we can't find them." The college is currently investigating the matter and has asked students to keep an eye out for any lost books.

In the meantime, students are finding other ways to access their books. Some are borrowing books from friends, while others are using online resources to find their books. The college is also offering a reward for anyone who can help locate the missing books.

Bridge-less and Unhappy

By Peter Mandle

The bridge is closed and it's a common sight. Hampshire students walk across it, usually on the way to class or to grab something to eat. The bridge is essential to getting around campus, but now it's closed. Why?

"We're not sure," said the college's spokesperson. "We're investigating." The college has closed the bridge due to safety concerns, but it's not clear what those concerns are.

Students are frustrated by the bridge's closure. "I need to get to class," said one student. "I can't just walk across the campus." Another student added, "I need my books. They're in the library on the other side of the bridge." The college has promised to keep students updated on the bridge's status.

Educator Advocates: Meeting Resistance

By Barry Parens

An educator with Hampshire College lost his degree of honor during a protest against the college's closure of the bridge. The educator, who was a member of the faculty, said he was targeted because he was a vocal critic of the college's decision.

"I was targeted because I spoke out," said the educator. "I was targeting the administration." The college has not yet commented on the educator's claim.

In the meantime, students are finding other ways to access their books. Some are borrowing books from friends, while others are using online resources to find their books. The college is also offering a reward for anyone who can help locate the missing books.

Freedom Is a Constant Struggle:

Angela Davis at Western New England College

By Mark Taylor

Admissions opens their window for a final draft. The school is reviewing applications for admission to the fall 2019 semester. The admissions office is accepting applications until the end of the month.

"We're looking for students who are passionate about learning," said the admissions director. "We're looking for students who are dedicated to their studies." The school is accepting applications from all majors, and all students are encouraged to apply.

The school is offering a variety of programs, including undergraduate and graduate degrees. The admissions office is also accepting applications for transfer students.

Remember our advertisers. They support us. Please support them.
Democracy at Hampshire: Fact or Fallacy?

"A democracy, when out of its native power, proves a monster."—Thomas Jefferson

Hampshire College has long been renowned as the place where students are encouraged to take charge of their education. The administration’s commitment to fostering an environment where students have the freedom to explore, learn, and engage in intellectual discourse has been a cornerstone of the college’s identity. However, questions have been raised about the extent to which democratic principles are upheld in the college’s academic and extracurricular activities.

One such criticism is the perceived lack of control students have over their academic and extracurricular programs. While the administration emphasizes the importance of student involvement and decision-making, some students argue that their voices are not adequately heard. This raises concerns about the democratic nature of the college’s governance model.

Another point of contention is the issue of representation. While the college prides itself on its diversity, there have been allegations of a lack of inclusivity in decision-making processes. This has prompted calls for more student involvement in shaping the college’s policies and practices.

Despite these challenges, Hampshire College remains a leader in providing a unique educational experience. The college’s commitment to fostering a community where students are encouraged to take ownership of their education is a testament to its dedication to democratic ideals. However, ongoing efforts to address the concerns raised will be essential in ensuring that the college truly embodies the principles of democracy.

On the Alcohol Policy

In the other college meeting,

Our circle students have expanded our protests in the matter of the new alcohol policy at Hampshire College. A petition has been circulated among the students, urging the administration to reverse the decision to allow for the sale of alcohol at the college’s events. The petition argues that the policy will lead to increased alcohol consumption and unwanted consequences. It calls for a more comprehensive and responsible approach to campus life.

The administration, on the other hand, has defended the policy, citing the benefits of having a more social and relaxed environment. They argue that the policy will not lead to increased consumption and that it will provide greater flexibility and convenience for students.

As this debate continues, it is important to consider the broader implications of the college’s alcohol policy. The goal should be to create a campus environment that is safe, inclusive, and conducive to learning.

Bringing on the Town Meeting

"Bring on the town meeting!"

In the open rhetoric,

The "town meeting" format has been a staple of Hampshire College’s governance. The college’s community meetings provide a platform for students, faculty, and staff to discuss and shape the college’s policies and decisions. However, some have criticized the format, arguing that it is not representative of the college’s diverse community.

The student body, in particular, has been vocal in their concerns about the town meeting’s lack of inclusivity and democratic participation. They argue that the format is not conducive to meaningful discussion and decision-making.

The administration, on the other hand, defends the town meeting format, citing its effectiveness in fostering a sense of community and shared responsibility.

As Hampshire College continues to explore how best to navigate its governance, it is crucial to consider the perspectives of all members of the community. The goal should be to create a system that is truly inclusive and democratic.
DIVESTMENT
Tactics: From Occupation to?

By Josephine Vernet

The anti-war movement is witnessing a shift in strategy. The days of occupation and protest are giving way to a more pragmatic approach. At a recent meeting of the Harvard Divestment Committee, a new tactic was discussed. The committee, made up of students and faculty, has been working to divest the university's investments in South Africa. They are suggesting that the movement should turn its attention to South Africa, a country that is under foreign control and facing a crisis.

The shift in strategy is based on the idea that the movement has already made significant progress in divesting from companies doing business in South Africa. Now, the movement should focus on countries that are facing even greater crises.

Several members of the committee have been researching the situation in South Africa. They have found that the country is facing a crisis that is similar to the one that the movement is facing in its own country. The movement should be able to apply the same tactics that have been successful in divesting from companies doing business in South Africa.

The committee is planning to launch a campaign to divest from South Africa. They are hoping to gain the support of the university community and to build momentum for the campaign.

Draft and Financial Aid:
How to Respond to the Cutoff

West

The university is facing a financial crisis, and the students are feeling the effects. The administration has announced that it is cutting financial aid to students who are not performing well.

The cuts are a response to the university's financial situation. The administration has been forced to make difficult decisions in order to keep the university afloat.

The cuts are a source of concern for students. They are concerned that the cuts will make it difficult for them to continue their education.

The administration has been reaching out to the students to explain the cuts. They have been trying to reassure the students that the cuts are necessary and that they are made in the best interests of the university.

It's Been a Long Time Since High School
Reflections of a Viet Nam Veteran Now at Hampshire

By Robert Stucky

I have been a Viet Nam veteran for many years. I have been through many experiences, from the war to the present day. I have seen many things that have shaped who I am today.

I have been a Viet Nam veteran for many years. I have been through many experiences, from the war to the present day. I have seen many things that have shaped who I am today.

The war was a time of great uncertainty. I was unsure of what the future held. I was unsure of what my role would be. I was unsure of what my responsibilities would be.

I have been a Viet Nam veteran for many years. I have been through many experiences, from the war to the present day. I have seen many things that have shaped who I am today.

The war was a time of great uncertainty. I was unsure of what the future held. I was unsure of what my role would be. I was unsure of what my responsibilities would be.

The war was a time of great uncertainty. I was unsure of what the future held. I was unsure of what my role would be. I was unsure of what my responsibilities would be.

The war was a time of great uncertainty. I was unsure of what the future held. I was unsure of what my role would be. I was unsure of what my responsibilities would be.

The war was a time of great uncertainty. I was unsure of what the future held. I was unsure of what my role would be. I was unsure of what my responsibilities would be.
Conservative Political Action Conference 1983

In Chapel, C. L., Longe

You are beginning a Guided Fantasy:

Imagine you are in the letters of this days. You and your friends are at the center of a number of exciting political events. The Reagan Administration is working hard to get the country back on track after the economic downturn of the 1970s. The Supreme Court is hearing cases that could shake up the abortion debate. The Iran-Contra affair is unfolding, raising questions about the role of the U.S. government in foreign affairs.

Do not be afraid of these events. They are part of history. You are a part of history. Your actions will shape the future. Enjoy your journey through the past.

---

Works in Progress:

—A Div. III South of the Border

By Boe Skiff

Melinda Hamilton is a Washington, D.C., lobbyist and political consultant who is working on a new campaign for a leading candidate in the upcoming congressional election. She has been following the campaign closely, and is well-connected in the political world.

Melinda has been working with Jack Jones, a senior campaign aide for the candidate. They have been discussing the best strategy to win the election, and have been working on the campaign's message.

The campaign has been facing some challenges, including a strong opposition from a well-funded independent candidate. Melinda has been working with Jack to develop a strategy to counter the opposition's message and to highlight the candidate's strengths.

In this environment, the campaign has been focusing on a few key issues, including healthcare, immigration, and infrastructure. Melinda has been working with Jack to develop messages that resonate with voters and to highlight the candidate's positions on these issues.

The campaign has been gaining momentum, and Melinda and Jack are confident that they can win the election. They are working hard to ensure that the candidate's message is heard by the voters and that the campaign is successful.

---

Community Council: SURPLUS FUNDING

Community Council has been allocated the surplus funds for its ongoing projects. The funds will be used to support various community initiatives, including education, healthcare, and social services.

The council has been working with local organizations to ensure that the funds are used effectively and efficiently. They have been consulting with experts and have been working to allocate the funds in a way that will benefit the community.

The council is grateful for the allocation of the surplus funds and is committed to using them in a way that will make a real difference in the lives of the community members.

---

Hampshire College's Psychedelic Band

A Free Performance at the Prescott Athenaeum Saturday Night — March 5

American Red Cross

---

BETTER YET

36 main st Vintage clothing

hours: 11-5

Northampton Downtowns

Monday thru Saturday
There Is No Intermission
"Between Acts"

by Wendy Levy

DANCE REVIEW:
Saturday Night Influenza
by Mary Hirt

The annual symposium (7th, 16th, 23rd, last year's) of the American Dance Festival at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro (in Greensboro), presented the November symposium (20th, 21st, 22nd) of the American Dance Festival at Greensboro College (in Greensboro) Monday and Tuesday. This time, the American Dance Festival at Greensboro College presented "Come up to Good Health," a collection of seven contemporary dance pieces performed by the University of North Carolina at Greensboro's Dance Department.

"The pieces of the festival," said Mary Hirt, "are performed by the students of the university, who are mostly interested in dance as an art form." The festival, held to promote the study of dance and to bring together students from different universities, is sponsored by the National Association of Dance, a national organization dedicated to the promotion of dance as an art form. Mary Hirt has performed in the American Dance Festival at Greensboro College since she was a student at the university. She now works as a dance critic for the Greensboro News-Record.

ΜOVIE REVIEW:
"The Verdict"
by Dennis Alt

"The Verdect" may have been considered controversial by some, but it is the story of the death of a woman, and how it affects her family. The story is told through flashbacks, showing the events leading up to her death. The film is a powerful and emotional story, and it is well worth watching.

"The Verdect" is directed by John Hopkins, and it is a film that has been praised for its direction and acting. The main character, played by Mary Hirt, is a woman who is married to a man who is being investigated by the police. The film is a powerful story, and it is well worth watching.

SOUTHSIDE JOHNNY
MARCH 17, 1983
8:00 P.M.
Studor Uno Billmose
Studor Uno Public 10.00

The Gun Club
Blasts Into Town
by E. J. Hayes

The Gun Club, a Los Angeles-based rock band, will be performing at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro's Student Union Ballroom on April 10. The band's music is a combination of rock, punk, and reggae, and it is well worth listening to.

The Gun Club is known for its energetic and intense performances, and it is sure to be a hit with the students at the university. The band's music is a combination of rock, punk, and reggae, and it is well worth listening to.

PHOKNOS SNOW
with Special Guest
Debbie Fox

March 8, 1983
8:00 P.M.

Tickets on Sale Feb. 25
students $3.00, $6.00 (pre. $10.00)
non-students $10.00

An evening of live music
and the winter season closing concerts
Changing the Curriculum?

As Hampshire College is in the throes of its annual academic planning cycle, the issue of curriculum reform is on the minds of many faculty and students. The college has already implemented several changes, including the elimination of certain majors and the creation of new interdisciplinary programs. These changes reflect the college's commitment to providing a flexible and dynamic educational experience. However, many faculty and students believe that more needs to be done to make the curriculum more relevant and engaging. The issue is complex and requires careful consideration of the needs of students and the changing world of knowledge.

DO YOU HAVE QUESTIONS ABOUT THE DRAFT?

The Hampshire College draft is a critical document that will shape the future of the institution. It is a complex and controversial issue that affects every member of the college community. Do you have questions about the draft? Our experts will be available to answer your questions and provide insights into the drafting process.

When It’s That Time of Day...

When it’s that time of day when you feel like you could use a little pick-me-up, there’s nothing quite like a cup of coffee. Whether you’re waking up early for an early class or staying up late to study, coffee can be a welcome morning or evening treat.

Conservative Political Action Conference continued

The Conservative Political Action Conference (CPAC) is an annual event that brings together political leaders, activists, and thinkers to discuss and debate the issues of the day. This year’s conference was held in Washington, D.C., and featured a variety of speakers and discussions on a range of topics, from immigration to foreign policy. The conference is a key event for the conservative movement and is widely watched by media and political analysts.

Herpes Support Group

The Herpes Support Group is a community of people who share the experience of living with herpes. The group meets regularly to provide support and information to members. The group is open to anyone who identifies as having herpes and is interested in connecting with others in a supportive and understanding environment.

Disability Notes:

MS—WHAT IT IS,
WHAT IT ISN’T

Over 100,000 Americans have a choice of MS—WHAT IT IS, WHAT IT ISN’T. Ms. Webbercomes makes a detailed look at the disease, its symptoms and treatments.

Health Views

Guest Speaker Series

Wednesday March 16

Dinner and Dance at the Colonial, New Haven

Speaker: John Webber, M.D.

Health and Wellness Director, Ms. Webbercomes, Inc.

Wednesday March 23

West Lecture Hall, 1 PM

"Health and Wellness: A Guide to Taking Care of Your Body and Mind"

Speaker: E.T. Welcher, M.D.

Counselor at Ms. Webbercomes, Inc.

For more information, call 1-800-MSWEBBE.