Faculty Come Together on Divestment

by Bob Maguire

"In the past few days, I've seen a lot of what is happening in the Hampshire Board of Trustees meetings and as students, we need to be aware of what is going on. The Board of Trustees has decided to divest $500,000 from South Africa and they are currently considering a similar action in the future. As students, we need to be aware of this and support the divestment movement."

Post Office Missing Money Mystery Resolved

In response to the recent allegations of missing money from the Post Office, it has been confirmed that the money was not taken by an employee, but rather by an outside source. The Post Office has increased security measures and is working closely with the Hampshire Police Department to ensure the integrity of the institution.

Hampshire Competes in College Market

by Paul Glick

"The Financial Aid Program at Hampshire College is quite competitive. We have numerous scholarships and grants available to students, and our admissions process is very meritocratic."
Energy Conservation at Hampshire

Energy conservation is not a new concept. However, it has become more critical in recent years due to rising energy costs and environmental concerns. At Hampshire College, a commitment to energy conservation is integrated into the daily operations and activities of the campus.

1. Improved Manufacturing: The college has implemented energy-efficient lighting throughout the campus, reducing electricity consumption by 20%. All new buildings are designed to meet ENERGY STAR standards, which save up to 30% of energy compared to conventional buildings.

2. Enhanced Healthcare Facilities: The health center has installed solar panels on its roof, generating enough electricity to power the building. This will offset 50% of the healthcare center's energy usage.

3. Efficient Transportation: The college has promoted the use of public transportation and cycling, reducing the need for individual car travel. In addition, a new fleet of hybrid vehicles has been introduced, reducing carbon emissions by 10%.

4. Recycling Programs: A comprehensive recycling program is in place, encouraging students and staff to reduce waste. The college recycles 90% of its waste, diverting 500 tons of waste from landfills annually.

5. Improved Heating and Cooling: The college's heating and cooling systems have been updated to improve efficiency. The new systems reduce energy consumption by 40% and improve comfort levels for students and staff.

In conclusion, Hampshire College's commitment to energy conservation is evident in its efforts to reduce energy usage and promote sustainable practices. The college recognizes the importance of conservation not only for the environment but also for financial savings. By implementing these measures, the college is not only doing its part to preserve the environment but also contributing to a more sustainable future.

Why We Cancelled the Town Meeting

Dear Members of the Community:

The purpose of this letter is to announce that the Town Meeting scheduled for Monday, April 15, 20XX, has been cancelled. This decision was made after careful consideration and consultation with the Town Administrator and the Board of Selectmen.

We understand that this may cause inconvenience to some, but we believe it is in the best interest of the community to proceed in this manner. The decision was not taken lightly, as it involves the welfare and safety of all residents.

Thank you for your understanding and cooperation.

Sincerely,

Town Administrator

悲剧，因为这表明我们正在失去彼此，彼此之间的联系正在消逝。这将导致更严重的后果。我们不能让它继续下去。我们不能让这种情况继续下去。我们必须阻止它。

So What About the Palestinians?

By David Piven

In the wake of the recent conflict in Gaza, the focus has been on the situation of the Palestinians. The conflict has been a long-standing issue, with many people advocating for a just and peaceful resolution. However, there are also those who argue that the conflict is caused by the actions of the Palestinians themselves.

I believe that this is a simplistic view. The conflict is complex and multifaceted, and it cannot be reduced to a simple cause and effect relationship. The roots of the conflict are deeply entwined with historical, political, and social factors.

In my opinion, the solution to the conflict lies in a two-state solution, with an independent and sovereign Palestinian state living in peace with Israel. This solution would require the participation and commitment of all parties involved.

Yours sincerely,

David Piven

Havin' a Party With Southside and the Jukes

By Mark Tufts

Southside didn't play the hit of '67 on WABF. Employing an open-armed approach to the audience, he began his set with a soulful introduction: "Hello, I'm Southside, and I'm glad to be here tonight. I'm going to give you a party and I hope you enjoy it." His words were followed by a raucous burst of music, which filled the room with energy.

The audience, having been in a trance-like state, suddenly came to life. They clapped, shouted, and danced in anticipation of the performance. The band, led by Southside, was a perfect blend of soul and rock, with each member contributing their unique style to create a harmonious sound. The lead guitarist, with his agile fingers, wove intricate melodies around the rhythm section, captivating the crowd. The rhythm section, consisting of the bassist and drummer, provided a solid foundation for the band's energy. Together, they created a dynamic experience that kept the audience on the edge of their seats.

Southside's voice was powerful and soulful, effortlessly commanding the crowd's attention. His lyrics, filled with emotions and stories, spoke to the hearts of the audience. The crowd responded with enthusiasm, their energy fueling the performance. The evening was a celebration of music and unity, with the audience and the band engaged in a mutual display of delight and excitement.

PLAYING

By Vincent Bell

If that's your interpretation of Southside's set, you would be surprised to find that there's a truth hidden in his music. The band played a mix of soul, rock, and blues, each piece tailored to the audience's desires. The sound was crisp and clear, with each instrument's contribution audible and distinct. The lead singer, Southside, commanded the stage with his vibrant energy, his voice resonating throughout the venue. The rhythm section, composed of the bassist and drummer, provided a steady pulse for the band, their movements calculated and precise.

The band members were engrossed in their performance, each contributing to the song's emotional depth. The lead guitar's riffs were soothing, while the keyboard player's notes were lively and dynamic. The percussion added a rhythmic complexity to the music, balancing the band's sound. The singer's lyrics were meaningful, with each word carefully chosen to convey a message that connected with the audience. The energy of the crowd was palpable, their reactions to the music varied from excitement to calm contemplation.

The evening was a testament to the power of music to bring people together. Southside and the Jukes, with their talent and passion, provided an unforgettable performance.

Network Execs Baffled as INTRAN Ratings Soar

By Youth Levin

The network executives were stumped. Despite their best efforts, the INTRAN ratings had been steadily rising for the past few months. Many had attributed this to the network's new marketing strategy, but the executives couldn't figure out why the ratings were continuing to climb. They were baffled by the sudden surge in viewership.

INTRAN's Andy Friedman: "We could give you a weekly show if you keep reading the personal stories from the Folk Follies.
